OLMSPEDS PATENT STOVE. THIS STOVE was invented and patented by Professor Olmsted of Yale College. It was uriginally designed for study chambers, but being found equally well adapted to family apartments, it ease times which in the extensive use among the inbabinants of New Haven, and the demand fer it here and elsewhere is rapidly increasing.
It is at present made chiefly of SHEET IRON

this material being estermed on all accounts the The most eligible; but it may be constructed either wholly or in part of cast iron should that be proferzed.

The chief peculiarity of this stove, consists of substituting for the open pipe usually en played to distribute the heat generated by authoreste coal, anapparatus called a RADIATOR, which though of com-paratively small dimensions, has an effect in absorbing and distributing the heat produced by coal equal to the trof a very long pipe. By this means, the unsightly appearance of a stove pipe, traversing the epartment, is avoided, while the saving of material parently diminishes the expense. The Radiator consists of two concentric cylinders having a narrow space of half un inch to BB high briggen them; through which the heated current is made to circulate in the passage from the chamber of combustion to the chimney. The current is thus brought cross-LT INTO CONTACT with the two contiguous surfaces, heating at once the outer and mner cylinder. The former sends it heat into the apartment by direct radiation; the latter being open at the top and botthe chimney of an Argand lamp. The nir within being rarefled by heat, flows out in a continual curat the top, while the colder air of the apartagent flows in at the bottom, and becomes heated in surn. This adds greatly to the effect, contributing more indeed towards heating an apartment, than the direct radiation from the surface, and equalling the temperature in a franchible degree.

The objects aimed at in the construction of this Stove are to be simple, so that domestics can easily hannage it; to be quickly kindled; to he capable of affording either a MILD or an INTERSE HEAT, according to the state of the weather, to preserve the AIR of the apartment PURE AND WHOLE-ME, to avoid-all inconveniences from pust, and finally, to be CHEAP and ECUNOMICAL.

It is confidently believed, that this stove fulfile as many of the conditions, as any one now invented, and to a degree attainable only by an inventor, like the present long and intimately acquainted with the

The CHAMBER STOVE is usually from 9 to 10 inches in diameter, and from 24 to 30 inches high. Its position is commonly on the hearth, or the usu-Figured Bombazines.

The PARLOR STOVE has two radiators, and th capable of wallating the hargest rooms in ordinary

The HALL STOVE is adapted to situations where a communication is made with a distant flue y means of a long pipe, as in halls, stores, &c. One ton of fine and half a ton of coarse coal, is an allequate supply for the chamber stove, for one scason. Two tous is a full allowance for the parlor siave, when made of the usual dimensions.

because apprishment contained in the food taken into the stomach is not properly extracted, and the food his perfect vision! is ejected in a ciude state. Dr Kingley is confiident that the famous Hygenn Theory, so called that ,'impurity of the blood is the cause of all diseases," s a great absurdity. Every one who reflects upon the subject a moment, will perceive that impurity of the blood is a secondary, not a primary complaint the effect, and not the cause of the direase. the functions of the liver are desenged, and the flow- and now be can see with that eye as well as he ever of bile increased, it is often taken up by the absorbent vessels and carried into the circulation, and be comes mingled with the blood as in Jaundice, when the patient shows it in his countenance. Now this impurity of the blood is caused by an increased flow of the bile, and to remedy it you must correct the secretion of the liver and restore it to a healthy state. . Dr. Fingley has spent much time in experiments ing with different vegetable medicines, for of the liver and now their his Universal Family Pills as the liest, most convenient and cheapest medicine that can be prepared for general use; and in offering them to the public, he is actuated more by benevolent than pecuniary motives, as the price
